In einem früheren Beitrag habe ich aufgezeigt, wie auf die Jahre des Aufschwungs der Villa Kinsele eine Periode des Niedergangs folgte. Ob der Grund dafür im mangelnden Interesse an der Sommerfrische von Seiten der Eigentümer oder – was plausibler ist – in einer Verschlechterung der finanziellen Situation zu suchen ist, vermag ich nicht mit Sicherheit zu sagen.

Tatsache ist jedenfalls, dass die Familie Kinsele ihr Sommerhaus nicht mehr bewohnte und es ganzjährig zur Vermietung anbot (Abb. 1). Ob in all den Jahren bis zum Verkauf 1943 Mieter gefunden werden konnten und wer diese waren, wird nicht mehr zur Gänze ermittelbar sein. Von einer Familie wissen wir jedoch, dass sie das Haus bewohnte, denn die Eheleute waren die bedeutenden Wissenschaftler Bronisław Malinowski und seine erste Frau Elsie R. Masson.

the Hapsburg Empire, South Tirol had been ceded to Italy after the war at the Treaty of St Germain; the language and culture were German.

The village in question, Oberbozen, stood on a plateau on the Ritten mountain, above the regional capital, Bozen (Bolzano). The area was renowned for its beautiful views over the Dolomite range, as a gentle tourist resort and for its benign climate that helped those suffering from lung complaints.[1] It was also quiet and peaceful, a good place in which to work, yet with a cog railway that connected it to the town in the valley.

The Malinowskis decided this should be their next home. They returned to Cassis, said farewell to Antonia who was to return to her native Tenerife[2] and moved themselves, children and possessions to Oberbozen.

They rented part of an old stone house by the little village church of Maria Schnee (Mary of the Snows, the original name of the village) and settled down for the winter of 1922–3, again with two servants. While Bronio continued work on his Trobriand material, Elsie wrote articles on the political and economic situation in Poland, and on the rise of the Fascist government that had just taken power in Italy under Benito Mussolini, and submitted the articles to English and Australian periodicals.

Abb. 2: Das Bild zeigt die Familie Malkinovski auf dem Platzl vor der Villa Kinsele (Wayne 1995). Am rechten Bildrand sieht man den zweiten Kastanienbaum, der in den 20er- oder 30er Jahren entfernt wurde und einen kleinen Teil des Daches der Villa Amalia des Benedikt Pobitzer, welches die Malinowskis im Jahre 1923 erwerben werden .

Bronisław Malinowski (geboren 1884 in Krakau, gestorben 1942 in New Haven) gilt als einer der Begründer der modernen soziokulturellen Anthropologie, seine ethnographische Methode ist bis heute ein wichtiger Bezugspunkt. Man sagt, er sei für die Anthropologie das gewesen, was Freud für die Psychoanalyse war. Während seiner Studienaufenthalte in Ozeanien lernte er seine spätere Frau, die australische Journalistin Elsie Masson (geboren 1890 in Melbourne, gestorben 1935 in Natters), kennen, die ihren Mann nicht nur tatkräftig unterstützte, sondern auch eigenständige Studien betrieb (Salvucci 2021).

Nach Aufenthalten in England, auf den Kanarischen Inseln, in Frankreich und Polen zogen die Malinowskis auf Anraten von Wiener Freunden auf den Ritten. Ausschlaggebend war nicht nur das Klima, von dem man sich positive Auswirkungen auf die tatsächlichen (Elsie) und vermeintlichen (Bronisław) gesundheitlichen Probleme erhoffte, sondern auch die Tatsache, dass Bozen und die Südtiroler Berge den inzwischen bekannten Anthropologen an Krakau bzw. die Hohe Tatra seiner Kindheit erinnerten. Zudem war Bozen finanziell deutlich günstiger als die Alternative London (Reiner 2016).

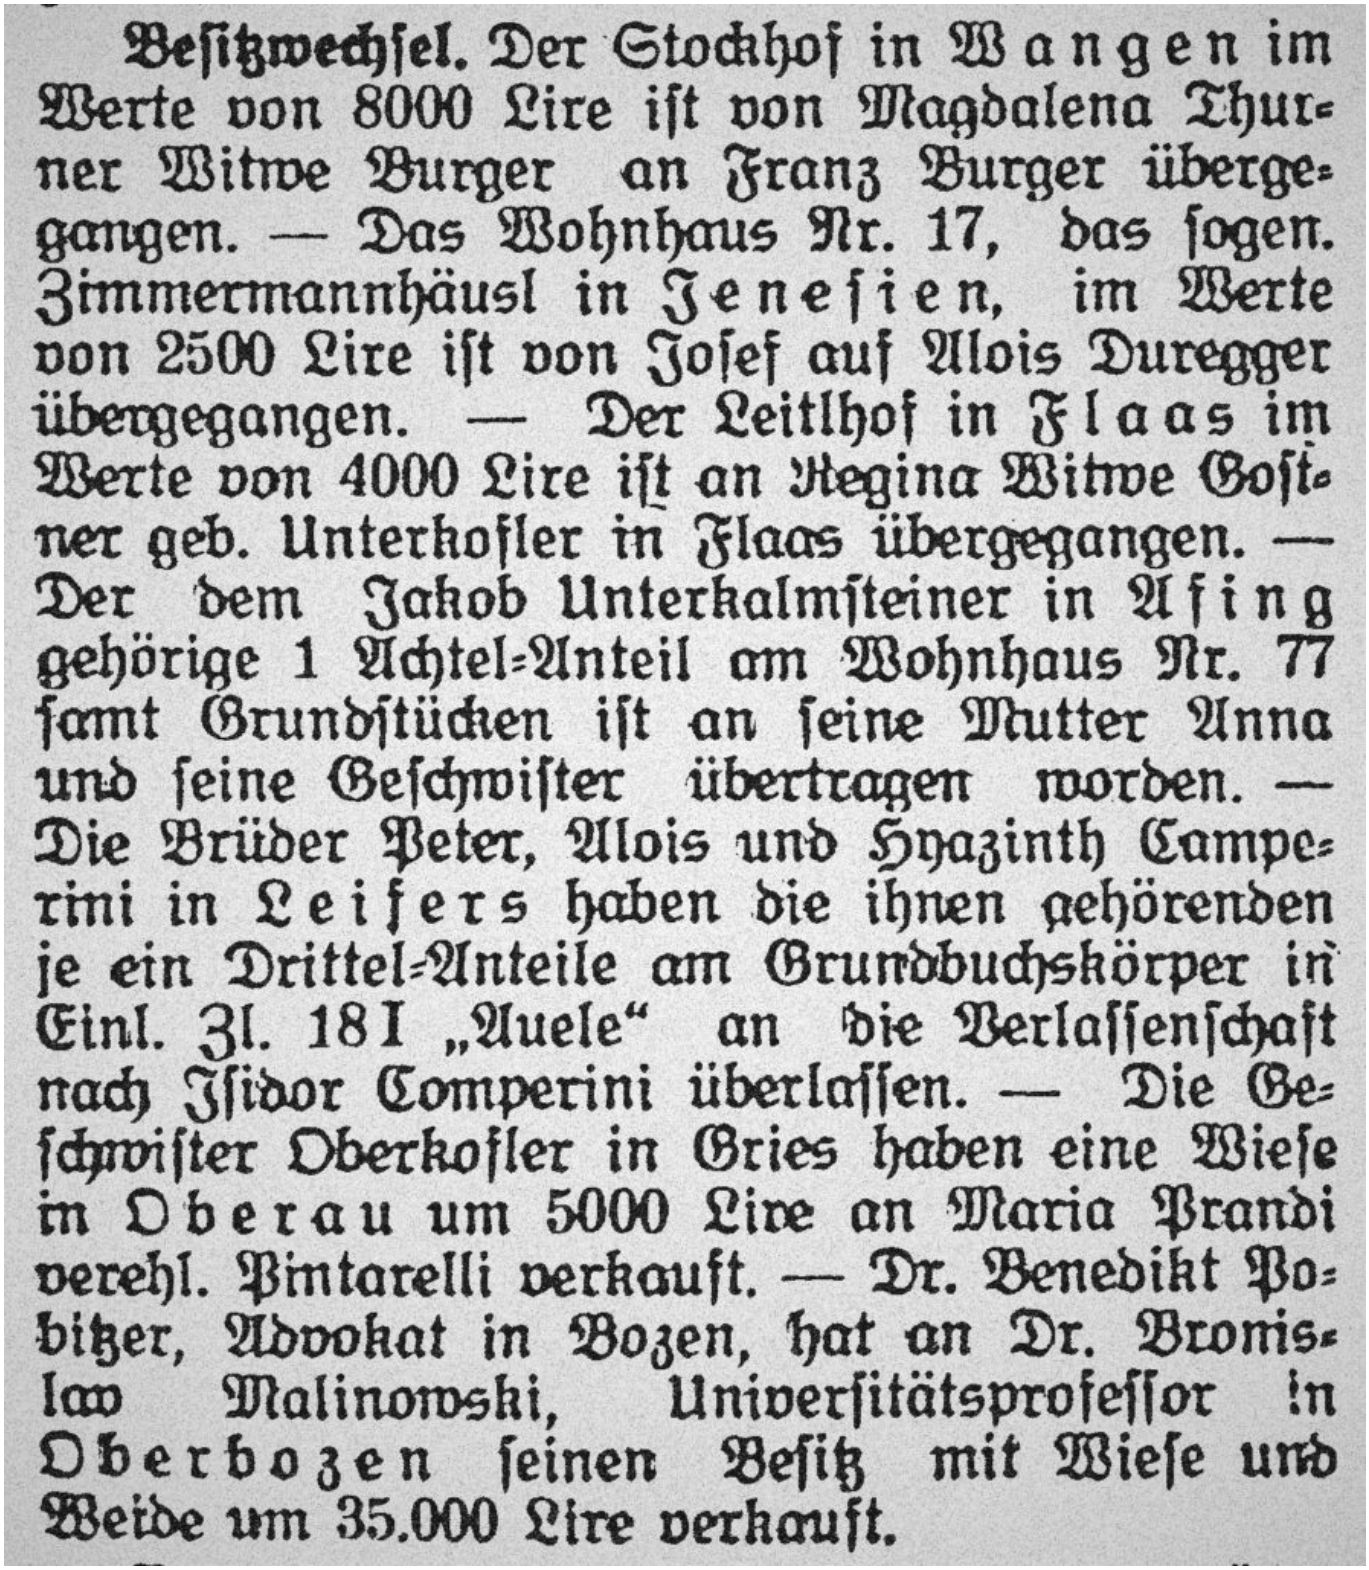

Besitzwechsel. Der Stockhof in Wangen im Werte von 8000 Lire ist von Magdalena Thurner Witwe Burger an Franz Burger übergegangen. — Das Wohnhaus Nr. 17, das sogen. Zimmermannhäusl in Jenesien, im Werte von 2500 Lire ist von Josef auf Alois Duregger übergegangen. — Der Leitlhof in Flaas im Werte von 4000 Lire ist an Regina Witwe Gostner geb. Unterkofler in Flaas übergegangen. — Der dem Jakob Unterkalmsteiner in Afing gehörige 1 Achtel-Anteil am Wohnhaus Nr. 77 samt Grundstücken ist an seine Mutter Anna und seine Geschwister übertragen worden. — Die Brüder Peter, Alois und Hyazinth Camperini in Leifers haben die ihnen gehörenden je ein Drittel-Anteile am Grundbuchskörper in Einl. Zl. 18 I „Auele“ an die Verlassenschaft nach Isidor Comperini überlassen. — Die Geschwister Oberkofler in Gries haben eine Wiese in Oberau um 5000 Lire an Maria Prandi verehl. Pintarelli verkauft. — Dr. Benedikt Pobitzer, Advokat in Bozen, hat an Dr. Bronislaw Malinowski, Universitätsprofessor in Oberbozen seinen Besitz mit Wiese und Weide um 35.000 Lire verkauft.

Abb. 3: Ausschnitt aus dem “Tiroler Volksblatt” vom 11.8.1923. Am Ende des Beitrags wird über den Besitzwechsel von Pobitzer zu Malinowski berichtet. Ich habe den Artikel vollständig wiedergegeben, damit man auch die Summen der anderen Transaktionen sehen kann. Die 35.000 Lire waren im Vergleich eine doch hohe Summe, was auf die Begehrlichkeit des Hauses und dessen Lage in Oberbozen hindeutet. Laut Salvucci (2023) wurden fast 19.000 Lire nochmals für die Renovierung und Adaptierung ausgegeben. Aus der stattlichen Summe lässt sich schließen, dass das

Haus deutlich den Vorstellungen der neuen Eigentümer angepasst wurde.

Im Oktober 1922 mieteten sie sich "… in einem alten gemauerten Haus nahe der kleinen Dorfkirche Maria Schnee ein, wo sie den Winter 1922-23 verbrachten, wieder mit zwei Bediensteten." (Wayne 1995). Burke und Ulrich (2023), die Enkel, geben an, dass die Familie "the Kinsele Haus" bewohnte. Da Anton und Fanny Kinsele ihr Haus in Maria Schnee 1920 an Karl und Maria Weger verkauft hatten, kann nur jenes von Cousin Robert Kinsele in Frage kommen. Schließlich hat Salvucci (in Vorbereitung) in dessen Nachlass einen Briefwechsel zwischen Bronisław Malinowski und Anton sowie Robert Kinsele gefunden, welcher die Vermietung der Wohnung im Kinselehaus zum Gegenstand hatte. Der Rechtsanwalt Anton Kinsele vertrat übrigens mehrere Jahre lang Malinowskis Interessen in Südtirol (Wayne 1995).

Abb. 4: Das Malinowskihaus heute nach der letztlich durchgeführten Renovierung des Daches, auf dem eine Photovoltaikanlage installiert wurde, von Osten aus gesehen. Im Wesentlichen ist das Haus über die Jahre unverändert geblieben. Links davon, halb verdeckt, das Eccel-

Haus. Auch mit dieser Familie pflegte Elsie Masson eine gute Nachbarschaft (Salvucci 2023).

Der Ritten schien der Familie Malinowski auch für einen längeren Aufenthalt ideal zu sein, weshalb sie mit dem Erwerb der benachbarten Villa Amalia liebäugelten, die der Bozner Rechtsanwalt Benedikt Pobitzer zum Kauf angeboten hatte. Ihr Wiener Freund Paul Khuner ermutigte sie dazu und half ihnen auch, die hohe finanzielle Hürde (Abb. 3) des Kaufs und Umbaus zu überwinden (Wayne 1995). Für die nächsten drei Jahre bewohnten Elsie und ihre drei Töchter Józefa, Wanda und die 1925 geborene Helena das Haus am Ritten ganzjährig, von 1926 bis zur Übersiedlung nach London 1929 nur im Sommer, die übrige Zeit verbrachten sie in Gries bei Bozen, wo sie zuerst die Villa Elisabeth und später die Villa Marienheim gemietet hatten. Der Gesundheitszustand der Ehefrau hatte sich weiter verschlechtert, sie litt an Multipler Sklerose. Bronisław hingegen kam nur in den großen Ferien nach Gries und Oberbozen, er arbeitete und hielt sich zuerst als Lektor, dann als Universitätsprofessor in London auf (Burke und Ulrich 2023).

Abb. 5: Die Villa von Nordosten gesehen.

Das doch stattliche Haus mitten im Grünen mit der großen Veranda und dem beeindruckenden Blick auf die Dolomiten wirkte sich befruchtend auf die Arbeit des Forscherpaares aus. Es bot den Malinowskis auch die Möglichkeit, Gäste zu empfangen. Salvucci zeigte 2023 auf, wie viele Studenten und Studienkollegen in den Oberbozner Jahren zu Gast waren und wie der Tagesablauf gestaltet war. So mancher Gast trat später erfolgreich in die Fußstapfen seiner Gastgeber. Untergebracht waren die Gäste im Widum bei der Kirche Maria Himmelfahrt und in der Pension Pattis, gleich gegenüber der Villa Malinowski.

Abb. 6: Die stattliche nach Süden geöffnete Veranda und der darüber liegende großzügige Balkon prägen das Gebäude funktional und ästhetisch. Rechts im Hintergrund die Villa Pattis.

1929 übersiedelte die Familie ganz nach London, verbrachte aber die Sommer weiterhin in Oberbozen. Ab 1934 war auch dies aufgrund der immer weiter fortschreitenden Krankheit von Elsie, die inzwischen auf den Rollstuhl angewiesen war, nicht mehr möglich, weswegen das Haus, das inzwischen als Malinowski-Villa bekannte war, an das Bozner Ehepaar Schulzinger vermietet wurde (Wayne 1995). 1935 starb die immer schwächer gewordene Elsie im Alter von nur 45 Jahren während eines

Kuraufenthaltes in Natters bei Innsbruck. Bronisław zog mit den Töchtern noch vor dem Ausbruch des Zweiten Weltkriegs in die USA, wo er einen Lehrstuhl an der Universität Yale angeboten bekommen hatte. Er starb unerwartet 1942 in New Haven, nachdem er 1940 seine zweite Frau, die junge britische Malerin Valetta Swann, geehelicht hatte (Salvucci et al. 2022).

Abb. 7: Annonce in der Alpenzeitung vom 7.10.1926. War das “y” am Ende des Familienamens absichtlich oder ein Fehler der Anzeigennahme? Das Verbot der deutschen Ortsnamen hatte schon gegriffen: Soprabolzano.

Während des Zweiten Weltkrieges wurde das Haus beschlagnahmt (Abb. 8), nachdem Großbritannien – die Malinowskis waren inzwischen englische Staatsbürger – zum Kriegsgegner Italiens geworden war. Nach Kriegsende wurden die Besitzverhältnisse wiederhergestellt und das Haus an die Nachkommen, inzwischen im Enkelgrade, vererbt.

Abb. 8: Meldung in den “Dolomiten” vom 3. August 1940. Mittels der Presse wurde in mehreren auf das Jahr 1940 verteilten Berichten der Bevölkerung mitgeteilt, wer die von der Beschlagnahme betroffenen ausländischen Bürger waren. Unter Punkt “s” ist Bronisław Malinowski angeführt.

Die für diesen Bericht verwendete Literatur ist umfangreich. Eine wahre Fundgrube für alle, die mehr über diesen bedeutenden Kulturanthropologen wissen wollen. Sehr interessant ist auch nachzulesen, wie besonders Elsie Masson, die ja viel mehr Zeit in Südtirol zugebracht hatte als ihr Mann, ihre Umgebung aus gesellschaftlicher, historischer und politischer Perspektive bzw. aus der wissenschaftlichen Distanz und der alltäglichen Nähe, erlebt und verschriftlicht hat. Sie bekam die Entnationalisierungsaktionen der faschistischen Regierung unmittelbar mit und hat deren Taten mehrmals auch publizistisch angeprangert (Masson 1923).

Abb. 9: 1993 ließ der Heimatpflegeverband an der Nordseite des Hauses diese vom Spazierweg aus ersichtliche Gedenktafel aus Porphyr anbringen.

Beachtung verdient auch das Malinowski Forum for Ethnography and Anthropology (MFEA). Ich zitiere vollinhaltlich aus (Salvucci et al. 2022):

Elisabeth Tauber und Dorothy Zinn, soziokulturelle Anthropologinnen an der Freien Universität Bozen, haben es als notwendig erachtet, auf die Geschichte Malinowskis und seiner Familie in Südtirol aufmerksam zu machen und gründeten 2016 das Malinowski Forum for Ethnography and Anthropology. Seitdem fördert das MFEA nicht nur die Forschung zu Malinowski und seiner Frau Elsie Masson, sondern hat sich auch von Malinowskis Anwesenheit in Südtirol anregen lassen, Gespräche über aktuelle anthropologische Theorien und Methoden zu führen. Ein weiteres Ziel des MFEA ist es, die Alpen als Forschungsregion ethnographisch wieder vermehrt in den Blick zu nehmen. Für das Malinowski-Forum fungiert Malinowski daher weniger als inhaltlicher Bezugspunkt für die alpine Anthropologie als vielmehr als Eponym, das vom wissenschaftlichen Komitee in Zusammenarbeit mit den beiden Ko-Koordinatorinnen entwickelt wurde. Derzeit arbeitet das Malinowski-Forum an zwei Bänden zu Malinowski in den Alpen beziehungsweise zur Bedeutung der ethnographischen Methode für die Forschung in den Alpen, die 2022 erscheinen werden. Der erste Band beschäftigt sich mit Malinowskis feinsinnigem Erbe in Geschichte und Ethnographie der Alpen, während der zweite Band neuere Beiträge versammelt, die die von Malinowski begründete, ethnographische Methode zur Erforschung der Alpen auf sehr unterschiedliche Weise anwenden.

Ein herzlicher Dank geht an Daniela Salvucci von der Freien Universität Bozen, welche mich bei meinen Recherchen zu Malinowski und seiner Beziehung zur Villa bzw. Familie Kinsele tatkräftig unterstützt hat.
